

Perinatal Mood Disorder (PMD) Care Pathway

If you are pregnant or had a baby recently,

Do you often feel:

- Very tired
- Sad
- Anxious/worried

Are you having trouble:

- Sleeping/eating
- Concentrating
- Enjoying time with your baby
- Coping with day to day tasks
- Dealing with scary thoughts/dreams

You may have a Perinatal Mood Disorder.

As many as 1 in 5 women will develop symptoms of anxiety and depression. This can affect any parent, moms or dads.

Some risk factors for PMD:

- History of depression or anxiety
- Family history of depression
- Recent stressful life events
- Lack of social support
- Being new to Canada

If in Crisis call 911 or visit your local Emergency Department

Tell your Health Care Provider how you are feeling at each visit ... they can help!
